DETAILED ACTION

This action is in response to paper filed 8/18/04.

Claims 1-5 are under consideration.

Information Disclosure Statement

A fully initialed and signed copy of the previously sent IDS paper of 13 March 2002 is enclosed.

Rejections Maintained and Necessitated By Amendment Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1- 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Applicant argues that the claims have been amended to recite positive method steps and the CIU is known in the art and explained in the specification.

Applicant's arguments have been full considered and found persuasive in part.

Applicant has removed to word probe from the claims.

Claims 2- 5 have been amended to have a conclusion but claim 1 still lacks a conclusion to the method that states the criteria used to make the determination. It is also not clear now what is meant by "substrate virus" because it could be any virus not just influenza.

Art Unit: 1648

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 1- 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kido . et al. and Christensen et al. (IDS).

Applicant argues that the claims have been amended to recite human, that Kido fails to provide specific conditions, that only a protease with a very specific activity can cause influenza or Sendai to become the infectious form, Kido lacks a suggestion to use human miniplasmin or use MDCK cells in the assay.

Applicant's arguments have been full considered and not found persuasive.

Applicant has amended the claims to require human miniplasmin.

Kido is aware of the specificities required of proteases to cleave inflenza (see Table 1 and Figure 1). The use of CIU, MDCK cells and methods to determine infectious virus are known in the art and it is noted that Applicant argues that CIU is an art known term therefore the assay must be known. It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to look for the human functional equivalent of miniplasmin because one is looking for an inhibitor of influenza for use in humans. Christensen et al. is cited as evidence of human miniplasmin. One of ordinary skill in the art would be able to determine homologous proteins to rat miniplasmin and proteases with the requires cleavage specificity.

Thus, the invention is not patentable over Kido et al. and Christensen et al.

Conclusion

No claim is allowed.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
